In terms of adding to this line, all I have are George's 4 daughters and their children. I do not have George's father. I can take his wife, a Hobson, back 7 generations to our George Hobson who came from England.

Although I can use GEDCOM to pull your data into my Roots3 data base, I am a little rusty on this. Perhaps it would be best if you snail-mail me any data you wish me to add. At some point I will do this, but at this time I'm busy trying to sell some of my George Hobson Lineage books (I had too many printed).

Thanks for your interest.

For a long time Mira Hobson Oldham was my Unknown Oldham in the Lyonsville Cemetery, near Connersville, Fayette Co., IN.

I would love to add the Hobson information to the database. I can send you my notes regarding the cemetery she is buried in. George Heber (known as Heber) Oldham's g-g-grandfather Stephen Oldham was born in Virginia, moved to Sevier Tennessee as a youth then moved to Fayette County, Indiana. Stephen donated the land the Church and cemetery are located on. I am trying to find out if the little house at the corner of the property could be the original Stephen Oldham residence. We have a photograph that belonged to my husband's father which is marked Elder Stephen's residence.

Let me know what information I can provide. We also have a family portrait of George Washington Oldham and his family (father of George Emmett, father of George Heber Oldham) if you want me to snail mail a copy of it to you.

Just let me know. My snail-mail is 2020 East 96th Street, Indianapolis, IN 46240. or you can send a GEDCOM as an attachment to an e-mail.

George Heber Oldham is in my husband's direct line. He was the brother of my husband's grandfather, Charles Freemont Oldham. They are both buried in the same cemetery in Fayette Co., IN. George Heber Oldham kept the records of the Primitive Baptist Church which was started by Stephen Oldham in the 1820's.

Have you checked my homepage at:

I would love to add to this particular line. I wrote to his daughters, but never received a reply.

Any assistance would be appreciated.
